Humans. The above illustrated concepts could also be applied to the emergence of imagination, starting from the evidence of the existence of INS, and particularly from the well-characterized case of MI (see Munzert et al., 2009, for a review). MI can be defined as a dynamic state during which an individual mentally simulates a given action.

Imagination is how the neurons in our brains make connections between ideas. Right now, we can see that the Industrial Era is fading, but not yet gone, and the Intelligence Era is coming, but not yet here. The period of transformation in between—and where we are now—is the Imagination Age. Right now the business landscape is
